ABSTRACT

Commuting students make up sixty-two percent of the fall 1975 student body and represent the principal source of enrollment growth at UNC-G. The Office of Institutional Research conducted a survey of 2,140 commuter and resident students in the spring of 1975. A stratified random sample was designed so that students in the different undergraduate and graduate classifications would be proportionately represented. A total of 684 commuters and 178 residents completed and returned the questionnaire. A copy of the entire questionnaire is appended to this document. Tables present commuter and resident responses and are divided into: (1) general characteristics; (2) financial characteristics; (3) academic and social life; and (4) activities and services. FOREWORD

Commuting students make up sixty-two percent of the Fall 1975 student body and represent the principal source of enrollment growth at UNC-G. The ratio of commuters to resident students has reversed since Fall 1968, when sixty-two percent of the students at UNC-G lived in dorms. Thus, in seven years, the commuter population at the University has almost tripled. In an effort to identify the needs and problems unique to commuting students, the Office of Student Affairs and the Office of Institutional Research conducted a survey of 2,140 commuter and resident students in the spring of 1975. A stratified random sample was designed so that students in the different undergraduate and graduate classifications would be proportionately represented. A total of 684 commuters and 178 residents completed and returned the questionnaire, giving a response rate of approximately forty percent. A copy of the entire questionnaire is appended at the end of the tables.

The following tables present commuter and resident responses to questions on the Commuter Student Survey. Total commuter and total resident responses are given along with a breakdown of commuter responses by graduate/undergraduate status and by sex. The totals vary according to the number of respondents who answered each question.

The tables are divided topically into four sections as follows:

I. General Characteristics (questions 1-20)
II. Financial Characteristics (questions 21-32)
III. Academic and Social Life (questions 33-47)
IV. Activities and Services (questions 48-55).

Preceeding each section is a page of highlights of the data in that section.

Data from the Commuting Student Survey provides a description of who the commuters are and how they differ from resident students traditionally served by UNC-G. Such information can help planners decide how the University can better serve the growing commuting population.

HIGHLIGHTS

SECTION I: GENERAL CHARACTERISTICS

- 84% of all commuters are junior, senior, special adult, or graduate students. (Q.1)
- 43% of the undergraduate commuters are transfer students. (Q.1)
- 39% of all commuters are males. (Q.2)
- Half of the commuters are 25 years old or older; 38% of the undergraduates and 82% of graduate commuters are in this age group. (Q.3)
- Nearly half the commuters are married; an additional six percent are separated, divorced or widowed. Half of the married students have at least one child. (Q.4,6)
- 73% of the undergraduate commuters are enrolled for 12 or more credit hours; 31% of the graduate commuters are enrolled for 9 or more credit hours. (Q.9)
- Four out of five commuters drive their own or the family car to campus. (Q.12)
- About a third of the commuters usually park in 'C' lots; nearly two-thirds park on city streets or wherever they can find a space. (Q.14)
- One commuter in five lives with parents or relatives; 36% live in rented apartments and 31% own or are buying their home. (Q.15)
- Commuters are somewhat more satisfied with their housing than are resident students. (Q.15)
- Undergraduate commuters come to campus more frequently than graduate commuters both for classes and non-class activities. However, men at the undergraduate and graduate level come to campus more frequently for non-class activities than women at either level. (Q.16,19)
- Resident students overwhelmingly prefer (93.5%) classes between 8 a.m. and 12 noon. While that time period is also preferred by 64% of the commuters, 30% of all commuters want classes after 4 p.m. When graduate commuters alone are considered, nearly 60% prefer their classes in late afternoon or evening. (Q.18)
- The most common reasons undergraduates indicated for not living in University housing were more privacy and better studying conditions off campus. Parental influence was cited by 14% of the respondents; about 20% of the commuters live at home. (Q.20)

HIGHLIGHTS

SECTION II: FINANCIAL CHARACTERISTICS

- Nearly a third of all commuters receive financial assistance from their parents, but only 28% consider themselves financially dependent on parents. When responses are broken down by degree status, 58% of undergraduate and 93% of graduate commuters indicate they are financially independent.(Q.21)

- 36% of all commuters rely on University loans, scholarships and work-study for financial assistance compared to 64% of resident students who use such aid. (Q.23)

- VA benefits are an important factor in male commuter enrollment. About 30% of male commuters depend on VA funding. (Q.23)

- About two-thirds (66%) of all commuters are employed either part or full-time. (Q.24)

- Male commuters are more likely to be employed than female commuters. 80% of all graduate commuters and 56% of undergraduate commuters are currently employed. About 10% of the total sample responded that they wanted to work but were not employed. (Q.24)

- Employed commuters work more hours per week than employed resident students. 44% of male commuters and 29% of female commuters work more than 30 hours per week. (Q.24)

- 78% of married commuters have spouses who are employed. 72% of those spouses work more than 30 hours per week. 53% of married males and 84% of married females have spouses who are employed more than 30 hours per week. (Q.26)

- Only four percent of married commuters have spouses who are also full or part-time students. (Q.32)

- Undergraduate commuters pay less for housing and utilities than do graduate students. One explanation is that nearly all commuters who live with their parents are undergraduates. (Q.29)

- The mean estimates commuters gave for housing and transportation expenses were $158 per month for total rent and utilities, $78 per month for those who share rent and utilities with another person and $28 per month as the cost of driving a car to and from campus each month. (Q.29,30,31)

HIGHLIGHTS

SECTION III: ACADEMIC AND SOCIAL LIFE

- Commuters are as definite as resident students in their plans to obtain a degree from UNC-G. Less than 3% of all undergraduates in the sample expect to drop out for a semester during their years at UNC-G. However, the most recent retention study on UNC-G students shows that 18.5% of all students who were enrolled for the Fall 1974 semester were not enrolled for the Fall 1975 semester. This figure excludes graduating seniors. (Q.33,34)

- Over 70% of both commuters and resident students spend no more than four hours each week in the library. (Q.35)

- Undergraduate commuters use EUC facilities much more frequently than either graduate commuters or resident students. (Q.36)

- 63% of commuters leave campus to eat lunch. (Q.37)

- The dorm is the most popular study place for resident students; the library is used more than any other study area by commuters. (Q.38)

- More than 90% of undergraduate commuters and resident students are encouraged by their families to continue their education. (Q.39)

- Resident students list their closest companions almost exclusively as friends enrolled at UNC-G. While over half the commuters cite their closest friends as fellow students, many commuters maintain close friendships with people not associated with UNC-G. (Q.40)

- UNC-G was the first choice for two-thirds of the residents and 70% of the commuter students. 62% of the men and 73% of the women commuters selected UNC-G first. (Q.42)

- The most common reasons commuters come to UNC-G are proximity, cost and academic programs and reputation. Resident students are most attracted to UNC-G by academic programs and reputation. Parental influence was more of a factor in resident student choices than in commuter selections. (Q.43)

- Commuter students, particularly at the graduate level, are less interested in spending time on campus than resident students are. Commuters tend to be less well informed about campus events than resident students are. (Q.44,47)

- UNC-G has had a positive effect on the social life of a fourth of the residents and 37% of the commuters. 33% of the residents and 38% of commuters disagreed with the statement that UNC-G has improved their social life. (Q.46)

HIGHLIGHTS

SECTION IV: ACTIVITIES AND SERVICES

- Commuters, particularly graduate commuters are less involved than resident students in extra-curricular activities. However, no more than 47% of the resident sample expressed interest in any one of the extra-curricular activities listed. Both residents and commuters who are involved in such activities expressed the greatest interest in campus special interest groups, intramural sports and academic clubs. Resident students are also fairly interested in campus religious groups. (Q.48)

- With the exception of undergraduate males, commuters take minimal advantage of campus social functions such as dances, beer parties and coffee houses. (Q.49)

- All commuters are much more likely to attend concerts, films, lectures or art exhibits than social functions. Resident students are much more active in attending all campus events except Town Student Luncheons, but they are just as likely to attend social as cultural events. (Q.49)

- The University Counseling Services have been used by about one in five resident and undergraduate commuters and by about one in nine graduate commuters. (Q.50)

- Commuters and residents are similar in their choice of services most of them believe the University should provide. The top four services which both groups indicated as most needed are career guidance, extended job placement facilities, financial counseling and counseling for personal problems. (Q.50)

- Graduate commuters are less interested in services than resident and undergraduate commuters. Extended job placement facilities is the primary need graduate commuters see. Other services they indicate considerable interest in are optional activity fees for spouses, a clearinghouse for off-campus facilities and a city orientation program. (Q.51)

- Residents are more likely than commuters and undergraduate commuters are more likely than graduate commuters to participate in activities or interest groups which the University might offer. The most popular activites listed were tennis, swimming and bicycling. (Q.52)

- More of the commuters and residents are able to participate in campus events beginning at 7:00 p.m. than any other time. (Q.53)

- The majority of residents but not commuters want a major athletic team at UNC-G. However, the idea of such a team is supported by less than half the commuters and residents if such a team would have to be subsidized with increased activity fees. (Q.54)

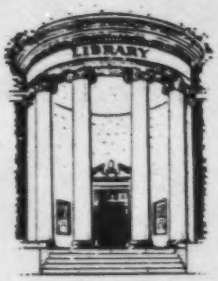
APPENDIX

THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA
AT GREENSBORO



Office of the Dean of Student Services

Survey Identification No._____

Dear Student:

As you may realize, commuters now make up a large portion of the student body at UNC-G It is recognized that living off campus presents special problems in the areas of transportation, housing, involvement in campus activities, the scheduling of classes, financing one's education and others. The Office of the Dean of Student Services has as its primary role that of serving in your best interests, assisting with your problems and special needs and finding and developing ways to solve these problems and more adequately meeting your needs.

Currently little or no information is available about these special needs and problems of commuting students. This lack of information makes it difficult to identify those areas in which assistance can be developed and/or expanded. This is why we are sending you this survey. By soliciting specific information from a relatively large sample of commuters, we hope to develop a better profile of the commuting population so that we can begin to work on those areas, programs and projects to help you specifically. The better the response or return from those of you receiving this survey, the more completely we can understand the problems we need to address.

We earnestly need and seek your help. Please complete the questionnaire and return it via the enclosed envelope at your earliest convenience. Answering the questionnaire should take less than 30 minutes. The code identification is for processing only and will not be used for identification. Under no circumstances will your right to privacy be violated.

We also welcome any suggestions you may have concerning how this office can better serve the commuting student.

Sincerely,

C. O. Shipton, Dean of Student Services
